PURPOSE
This bulletin contains condensed diagnostic information and quick-reference troubleshooting charts for servicing the audio systems with multi-center display used in the 2004 Endeavor. The procedures in this bulletin are intended to supplement the procedures in Group 54 of the service manual, to help diagnose some typical failures and problems.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION
The audio system used in the Endeavor uses "M-Bus" technology for communication between the components and the multi-center display. Adjusting some audio component controls has no direct effect on the related system functions. Many audio controls send signals from the component to the multi-center display, where the display processes the signal and then sends the actual control signal back to the audio component(s) where the proper function is activated. A suspected radio problem or failure may actually be caused by a malfunctioning multi-center display, or vice versa.
