TEXTBOOK CONNECTIONS:
Prentice Hall Literature, The British Tradition, Unit 6, page 1064, Wartime Speech, Sir Winston Churchill, BBC, London, 19 May 1940 and page 1032, The Demon Lover, Elizabeth Bowen

In the 1930s, Sir Winston Churchill warned against the ominous ambitions of the Nazis. In his famous radio address, Churchill vigorously spoke out against Nazi invasion of European countries. While Churchill made this stirring speech in 1940, the Nazis were in the midst of the opening a new death camp, Auschwitz. Holocaust Survivor and Author, Primo Levi describes the horror of his experience as a prisoner of Auschwitz in Survival in Auschwitz. Read Churchill's speech and Survival in Auschwitz. In his speech, Churchill explains that even the most drastic of measures are needed which are no way a comparison to "the struggle for life and honor, for right and freedom..." This address was given before most of the Holocaust victims were murdered. What were the world's reactions to this speech? Was this speech foreshadowing events to come or were Nazi atrocities impossible to predict? Elizabeth Bowen wrote The Demon Lover based on her experience growing up in London during "the Blitz" from September 1940 to May 1941. Compare and Contrast the World War II experience in Britain to that of the Nazi-occupied countries and of the Holocaust Survivors in those countries.
